threedecadesago public key cryptosystems made a revolutionary breakthrough in cryptography they have developed into an indispensable part of our modern communication system in practical applications rsa dsa ecdsa and similar public key cryptosystems are commonly used their security depends on assumptions about the difficulty of certain problems in number theory such as the integer prime factorization problem or the discrete logarithm problem however in 1994 peter shor showed that quantum computers could break any public key cryptosystem based on these hard number theory problems this means that if a reasonably powerful quantum computer could be built it would put essentially all modern communication into peril in 2001 isaac chung and neilgershenfeld implemented shor's algorithm on a 7 qubit quantum computer in 2007 a 16 qubit quantum computer was demonstrated by a start up company with the prediction that a 512 qubit or even a 1024 qubit quantum computer would become available in 2008 some physicists predicted that within the next 10 to 20 years quantum computers will be built that are sufficiently powerful to implement shor's ideas and to break all existing public key schemes thus we need to look ahead to a future of quantum computers and we need to prepare the cryptographic world for that future
