What Matters in Policing? 2017-10-30 studies of policing tend to focus on effectiveness on what works rather than on the more important question of what matters of why policing should be done in particular ways or reformed or restructured this book explores that angle looking at the implications of recent restructurings in the united states the united kingdom and the netherlands with a special emphasis on the dilemmas faced by police leadership as they confront change

Fixing Broken Windows 2001-03 cites successful examples of community based policing njbwbt

Comparative Criminal Procedure 2009 this handbook presents innovative research that compares different criminal procedure systems by focusing on the mechanisms by which legal systems seek to avoid error protect rights ground their legitimacy expand lay participation in the criminal process and develop alternatives to criminal trials such as plea bargaining as well as alternatives to the criminal process as a whole such as intelligence operations the criminal procedures examined in this book include those of the united states germany france spain russia india latin america taiwan and japan among others

Zero Tolerance Policing 2013-07-18 what is policing about and who defines it this book examines these key issues by exploring the notion of zero tolerance and its application in different settings following its introduction in new york and the seemingly dramatic reduction in crime zero tolerance policing was taken up in a number of other countries including the uk and the netherlands this book examines that process it argues that this policy was in fact nothing more than a return to old style crime control policing while it did foster the swift analysis of crime patterns and more assertive policing of public places it could lean towards repression and demonising of certain groups examining the eee examining the eeeexamining the negative response of leading police officers and the policy s debatable impact on crime the author concludes that zero tolerance in the uk and netherlands was more of a populist political and media creation than a coherent policy this book is far more than an authoritative analysis of zero tolerance it is a valuable source for entering the debate about the big picture in policing which many stakeholders now wish to see the approachable style of this book makes it ideal for students academics police practitioners and the lay reader to enter that debate

The Transition from Retributive to Transformative Justice 2015-03-18 scientific essay from the year 2009 in the subject law criminal process criminology law enforcement grade 86 ottawa university course penal abolitionism language english abstract crime has long been a stable term with a finite definition but many modern reforms attack the foundation of retributive justice following two incidents of children killing children this paper will examine various arguments made by nils christie 2000 and louk hulsman 1986 in regards to crime this paper will describe and analyse the public and political responses to two notorious cases of the killing of children by children one in england and one in norway using the works of christie 2000 and hulsman 1986 i will present the ways in which the cases were discussed as symptomatic of wider social problems and how differently england and norway acted ultimately portraying their respective juvenile criminal justice system this paper will examine both the similarities and the differences in the reactions to the killings in england and norway arguing that while the similarities may be more obvious the differences may be more instructive on the surface both seem like similar cases but because of the different geographical locations they were handled quite differently this sets up the context of penological arguments about the emergence of a postmodern penalty to start one must understand the basis of christie s 2000 and hulsman s 1986 theories respectively nils christie 2000 argues that a nation s extent and level of punishment is a normative question in criminology the term normative defines the structures within culture which help regulate the proper function of society these structures encourage and enforce valued social activity and discourage negative acts punishment is normative because crime control executives and decision makers are both free and obliged to choose how far punishment will go the argument christie 2000 raises is that contemporary crime control values the prison industrial complex expansion big business and continued incarceration because society fears any alternative
