this book deals with the notion of reformulation and more specifically with a group of lexico grammatical units which help codify and signal the activity of reformulation in english while discourse markers in english have been described in detail the area of reformulation is a relatively unexplored area in comparison with languages such as french or spanish in this respect this book has been conceived as a contribution to the field of discourse markers and in particular to the markers that help display the function of reformulation in english first of all a definition of the notion of reformulation is provided as a necessary precondition for the elaboration of a taxonomy of english reformulators these are grouped into different classes and sub classes on the basis of the type of reformulation effected thus four main types are identified expansion modification reassessment and compression after an inductive and interpretive analysis of examples taken from the british national corpus bnc the syntactic and distributional properties of these units as well as their environments of use are described and discussed bachelor thesis from the year 2008 in the subject english language and literature studies linguistics grade 2 0 university of bayreuth lehrstuhl für englische sprachwissenschaft language english abstract discourse marker is a term which is relatively hard to define a simplified way is to say that it refers to words or phrases which are usually used to structure sequences of a speech or a written text examples of discourse markers include expressions like actually you know well or ok discourse markers are lexemes which could often simply be left out without changing the semantic function of a sentence because they usually don t contribute to the sentence s truth condition or the propositional content however they often have other important functions apart from being used in order to organise and structure a speech they often indicate some aspects of attitude renkema 2004 169 and the relation between different utterances discourse markers appear very frequently in speeches usually every few seconds in written texts they are very frequent as well though usually not as frequent as in verbal speech discourse markers can also give information about social dimensions group identity and relations between communicating people aijmer 2002 14 although this definition is by far not entirely comprehensive it should serve for the moment in order to clarify the subject of this paper this paper is going to explain the term discourse markers in some detail and then analyse the use of discourse markers by speakers of non native english namely members of university parliamentary debating competitions a close definition will follow in chapter 2 who are from the countries germany the netherlands czech republic turkey and malaysia it will be analysed and explored how often discourse markers occur in the speeches of different speakers and what exactly the different discourse markers are used for treatment focusing on comment clauses formed with common verbs of perception and cognition in a variety of syntactic forms it understands comment clauses as causal pragmatic markers that undergo grammaticalisation and acquire pragmatic and politeness functions and subjective and intersubjective meanings to date the prevailing view of their syntactic development which is extrapolated from synchronic studies is that they originate in matrix clauses which become syntactically indeterminate and are reanalysed as parenthetical in this corpus based study laurel j brinton shows that the historical data do not bear out this view and proposes a more varied and complex conception of the development of comment clauses researchers and students of the english language and historical linguistics will certainly consider brinton s findings to be of great interest discourse markers the particles oh well now then you know and i mean and the connectives so because and but and or perform important functions in conversation dr schiffirin s approach is firmly interdisciplinary within linguistics and sociology and her rigourous analysis clearly demonstrates that neither the markers nor the discourse within which they function can be understood from one point of view alone but only as an integration of structural semantic pragmatic and social factors the core of the book is a comparative analysis of markers within conversational discourse collected by dr schiffirin during sociolinguistic fieldwork the study concludes that markers provide contextual coordinates which aid in the production and interpretation of coherent conversation at both local and global levels of organization it raises a wide range of theoretical and methodological issues important to discourse analysis including the relationship between meaning and use the role of qualitative and quantitative analyses and the insights it offers will be of particular value to readers confronting the very substantial problems presented by the search for a model of discourse which is based on what people actually say mean and do with words in everyday social interaction this book presents the multifunctional nature of pragmatic discourse markers in english and catalan oral narratives from the point of view of text linguistics and contrastive analysis it is argued that english and catalan markers are distributed and operate differently at four different levels in the varied discourse structures of the text i e at the ideational the rhetorical the sequential and the inferential levels the results confirm the distinctions in functional systemic levels and indicate that the nature of the two languages has a direct influence on the presence and nature of markers in the texts the study is built up on a corpus of english and catalan elicited narratives of native speakers adopting the sociolinguistic labovian framework adapted to the situation of educated adults the study results in a better understanding of the contribution of pragmatic markers to the organization and the interpretation of oral texts bringing insights from relevance and cognitive approaches to text structure and moving from descriptive to theoretical levels of analysis and discussion in our everyday speech we represent events and situations but we also provide commentary on these representations situating ourselves and others relative to what we have to say and situating what we say in larger contexts the present volume examines this activity of discourse marking from an enunciative perspective providing the first english language study of the highly influential theory of enunciative and predicative operations this semantic pragmatic theory is popular among academics who specialize in linguistics discourse analysis translation studies and didactics in france but has not yet been widely adopted elsewhere the tools of this theory are applied to a variety of specific discourse markers in contemporary english and semantic hypotheses are tested using the data based approach of corpus linguistics this book therefore provides an english speaking readership with the keys to understand the theory underlying the author s analysis of a selection of markers anyway indeed in fact yet still like and i think this book will provide a valuable resource for students and researchers in linguistics with an interest in discourse markers natural language argumentation formal semantics the interfaces between syntax semantics and pragmatics linguistic theorisation and french or poststructural models of discourse analysis situated at the interface between corpus linguistics and systemic functional linguistics this volume focuses on conjunctive markers expressing contrast in english and french the frequency and placement patterns of the markers are analysed using large corpora of texts from two written registers newspaper editorials and research articles the corpus study revisits the long standing but largely unsubstantiated claim that french requires more explicit markers of cohesive conjunction than english and shows that the opposite is in fact the case novel insights into the placement preferences of english and french conjunctive markers are provided by a new approach to theme and rheme that attaches more importance to the rheme than previous studies the study demonstrates the significant benefits of a combined corpus and systemic functional linguistics approach to the cross linguistic analysis of cohesion the purpose of this thesis is to analyse the distribution and functions of discourse markers in forty eight malaysian english blogs from january to august 2010 from the socio pragmatic standpoint using both halliday s 1994 systemic functional linguistics sfl and gonzalez s 2004 pragmatic functions frameworks gonzalez s 2004 framework was chosen as it differentiates nine different pragmatic functions accordingly i e reformulate sequential addition concluding commentary delays emphaziser recover and topic shifter while halliday s 1999 framework comprises three broad areas which are the ideational interpersonal and textual metafunctions blogs were chosen as the units of analysis because it is a form of online interaction that is informal between users who may or may not know each other but the interaction resembles everyday spoken discourse which would entail the use of discourse markers data was collected through a non interventional method and analysed using content analysis followed by descriptive statistics the study found a total of thirteen discourse markers i e and but so because then well anyway okay like i think and i mean you know and yeah with three hundred and sixty nine occurrences markers and and but are found to be the most used markers with one hundred and sixty two and eighty occurrences respectively moreover each marker exhibited diverse functions according to the context it is revealed that the discourse marker and had five diverse functions discourse markers but so and then followed in second place with four functions each because and well constituted three functions while anyway like i think and i mean come with two each finally discourse markers okay and you know constitute one function each an overview of the central themes in the selected blog posts also addressed the distinctive characteristics between genders particularly in their writing styles the analysis revealed that female bloggers preferred discourse markers and and then which demonstrate a better narrative skills and the ability to maintain the floor while male english bloggers favoured discourse markers so and well which indicate closure of a topic the limitations of the study as well as suggestions for future research perspectives in analytical philosophy
