Church, State, and the Crisis in American Secularism 2011-06-01

since 1947 the supreme court has promised government neutrality toward religion but in a nation whose motto is in god we trust and which pledges allegiance to one nation under god the public square is anything but neutral a paradox not lost on a rapidly secularizing america and a point of contention among those who identify all expressions of religion by government as threats to a free society yeshiva student turned secularist bruce ledewitz seeks common ground for believers and nonbelievers regarding the law of church and state he argues that allowing government to promote higher law values through the use of religious imagery would resolve the current impasse in the interpretation of the establishment clause it would offer secularism an escape from its current tendency toward relativism in its dismissal of all that religion represents and encourage a deepening of the expression of meaning in the public square without compromising secular conceptions of government the anthropocene is a concept which challenges the foundations of humanities scholarship as it is traditionally understood it calls not only for closer engagement with the natural sciences but also for a synthetic approach bringing together insights from the various subdisciplines in the humanities and social sciences which have addressed themselves to ecological questions in the past this book is an introduction to and structured survey of the attempts that have been made to take the measure of the anthropocene and explores some of the paradigmatic problems which it raises the difficulties of an introduction to the anthropocene lie not only in the disciplinary breadth of the subject but also in the rapid pace at which the surrounding debates have been and still are unfolding this introduction proposes a conceptual map which however provisionally charts these ongoing discussions across a variety of scientific and humanistic disciplines this book will be essential reading for students and researchers in the environmental humanities particularly in literary and cultural studies history philosophy and environmental studies
